The indie-wonders Lily Electric release their debutalbum all over the world in April 2009:

With a load of excellent reviews from the Danish release of their debutalbum "You're In The Painting You Saw", Lily Electric is now ready to bring the album to their audience in Germany and the rest of Europe.

Lily Electric, living in Berlin, has toured extensively over the last 2 years and has therefore already placed themselves in a position most bands would wish they could brag about. The Danish band don't need to brag, it seems to be a natural consequence of their hard work and their big talents.

Lily Electrics debutalbum "You're In The Painting You Saw", is out after two years of intense touring. Lily Electric is known as being a well-playing liveband, and combined with a big songwriting talent, it has already taken them to famous festivals around the world. In their short lifetime of only 3 years, they've played the South by Southwest festival in Austin (USA), Taubertal Festival (Germany), SPOT Festival (DK) played in New York, London, Riga, besides touring Latvia, and Germany and Denmark intensively.

Lily Electrics reputation as an amazing liveband will now be followed by a recording career. Their debutalbum, "You're In The Painting You Saw", being the first in a definitely longer row of great releases, concerts and experiences.

The debutalbum is recorded in Berlin, at the old DDR-radio station in Lichtenberg. "You're In The Painting You Saw" was produced by the young Danish producer Mikkel Holtoug together with Lily Electric and mixed by Dimitri Tikovoi (John Cale, Placebo, The Horrors).
